

3. Capitalism and class.
4. State development and state formation.
5. World-systems theories.
6. Feminist theories of power.
7. Political identities and processes of legitimation.
8. Political representation and political incorporation.
9. Parliamentaryism and corporatism.

Second Half

Macro political institutions and processes

1. Pathways to democracy and authoritarianism - the formation of interest groups and voluntary associations - civil society - social capital.
2. Welfare state - state institutions, policies, and economic development.
3. Political actors and processes - voting and civic engagement.
4. The displacement of states as sites of political action.
5. New social movements - insurgency, social movements, and revolution - class, race, and social movements.

6. State, society, and globalism - Weber's iron cage, globalism and transnationalism.
7. Globalisation : economic and neo-institutional views - globalisation, local transformations, "world order" - transition towards a post-socialist society, neighbourhood gentrification and community building practices in post-industrial societies - peasant against globalisation.
8. Developmentalism - different approaches.

Paper - VIII

First Half

Political Anthropology

1. Introduction to Political Anthropology - significance - development.
2. Approaches in political anthropology : genetic approach, functionalist approach, typological approach, terminological approach, structuralist approach, dynamist approach.
3. Authority charisma, and social organization.
4. Politics without a state : kinship and politics - band societies, descent groups, chiefs.
5. Social stratification and power - Marx : politics and economics, domination.